I saw the sentence in an essay: "Apparently" a merciful sentiment, in the event of a celebrity's death, a [pity] is not the appropriate response." I have no clue what it means. Does it mean "sympathy" in this context? A: Pity means sympathy in this case. The sentence is about the reaction when people hear that a celebrity has died. Apparently a sympathy is not appropriate. Pity means sympathy, therefore it is appropriate. to feel sympathy for someone who is suffering or in distress 'we've been sent to Earth as a show of human sympathy' 'the jury pities [...] the young men' 'he was suddenly seized with pity for the starving people of the world' So it is the same. 1.
