All of us were very much into the show because of our connection to the musical and the characters that we were playing, but we also felt like we were kind of forming our own little acting family of sorts," says Rob Riggle, who played Johnny Fedora (and sang a bit in the "Lord, I Want to Shout" number) in the second Broadway revival of Jesus Christ Superstar. "It's very much like being a band, as well, where even though we're in different rooms, we come together at the end of the night to talk about things or laugh or whatever. It was a very cool experience to have something like that happen, and it's a luxury that not every actor gets to do." Fallon and Riggle were in their own old-school musical theater family, part of the group that played in the original Broadway production of the rock musical Hair. As well as their own show, the pair are also parents to a young son, and during their three-year run, the actors will often come down to the stage door to say hi and give the kid presents. After all, says Fallon, they've got theater chops. "My daughter's like, 'Why does mommy act like a clown all the time?'" Fallon says. "I go, 'Well, I'm in a musical.' She goes, 'Oh, OK, I get it.'" During their Broadway run, Fallon also met Timothy
