(ROPS) is a Free Free.Of course, it's a time of great reflection. We all were, and to some extent still are, thinking, contemplating and re-reflecting in preparation for the elections in less than 5 days. So, it's understandable, but also unfortunate, that a lot of bad analysis of the past (in a post-factual world), political prejudices, reactionary reactions and political fantasies are also circulating. Many people are still stuck on the past and not ready to start a new chapter. Some insist on a return to the old system while others say, "we want another revolution" (hopefully not in November, and definitely not with a USA/UK-USA connection). So, with that, here's my input from the currently unfolding election campaign (that I am desperately trying to follow a bit) and what's left of my political "instinct": First, the current election campaign has yet to enter a game-changing phase. Since the elections are very tightly intertwined with the EU, the economic crisis, Britain's European partners, the UK, the rest of the EU, the UK's politics, the UK's prospects as a serious country in which the UK can expect to have influence, and the UK's role and place in the next generation of global politics, a new election campaign has yet to take off. And that means that any uncertainty in the upcoming elections will likely remain and we still expect a stal
