Include in your dialogs a dialog which contains a listbox and a checkbox. When the user select a checkbox in the dialog (using the ChangeEnable or CheckEnable property), start the tool in the specified mode. An example of this is the RunTool dialog. When the user check the RunTool mode in the dialog, the tool will run the specified command. DataModeler is easy to use, it provides a large set of features and it is ready to work right out of the box. With DataModeler you can:Q: Simple C# Query against a List of Parameters So I have a class MemberViewModel which contains an int which I use in a query to retrieve data from a SQL Server database. I then I need to use this data in a list of members on the page. I have a page wizard in WPF which generates the code behind and the XAML for the page but each page has a different parameter value which is used in the query. I have created a class to contain these parameters: public class ComboBoxParameters { public List< AvailableValue { get; set; } } I then use it as follows: [Query] SELECT [dbo].[Members].Id, [dbo].[Members].MemberTypeId, [dbo].[Members].MemberName, [dbo].[Members].Active, [dbo].[Members].Email, [dbo].[Customers].CustomerName, [dbo].[Customers].AddressLine1, [dbo].[Customers].AddressLine2, [dbo].[Customers].City, [dbo].[Customers].State, [dbo].[Customers].PostCode, [dbo].[Customers].Country, [dbo].[Customers].Phone, [dbo].[Payments].PaymentCode, [dbo].[Payments].Amount, [dbo].[Payments].Recipient, [
